After much thought and deliberation, this year's yearbook staff unanimously decided on a theme for the 1987 Newtonian- the jungle. To us, Newton North is a jungle in many ways. For starters, we are the Tigers, which is something that we all share. However, there are many facets to Newton North, and Newton North has meant something different to every member of the 1987 graduating class. In this respect, the jungle represents diversity.

In the jungle, there are certain things that one needs to know in order to survive, and the same holds true for Newton North. Let's call this knowledge a survival kit for success. As freshmen, we were totally unaware of the contents of this kit, but now, as seniors, our kits are overflowing.

First, there is the compass. Trying to find one's way around has always been a challenge. It all began with the Great Building Marathon during the first week of school. Then there was the method of trial and error, and finally success. Second, there is the bell. North, unlike other high schools, doesn't provide one for us, except for the bell telling us when it is time to get to homeroom. But who needs a bell when we have Mr. Guild shouting in our ears telling us to get off Main Street? However, we do have a buzzer to remind us when it is two minutes to the hour. Third, and most important, there is courage. Once we figured out how to get to the cafeteria, preferably during the right lunch, we are faced with the buzzling mess of lunch lines and the search for a clean unnoccupied seat. Fortunately, this year this quest was made easier with the invention of the senior tables.

On a more serious note, however, our class has a lot to be proud of. We are the first four-year class to graduate Newton North, and we have learned what it is like to feel completely lost among 610 other peers. We are lucky, though, because we have had an extra year to take advantage of what North has to offer and find a place for ourselves admist all the confusion. Similar to the jungle, Newton North was full of competition, just as it was full of diversity. What we must never forget is what we have learned from one another and what mistakes we have made.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

CRIMES OF THE HEART

"Crimes of the Heart," a powerful comedy by Beth Henley, was North's first theatre production of the year. The play takes place in 1974 in Hazelhurst, Mississippi, and focuses on the reunion of the three McGrath sisters.

One of the sisters, Babe, has recently shot her husband, which is the reason for the reunion. A lawyer named Barnett Loyd wants to represent her so he can settle a "personal vendetta" he had against Babe's husband. Other characters were Doc Porter, an old boyfriend of Babe's charming sister Meg, and Chick, the sisters' arrogant cousin who Lenny, the oldest sister, chases out of her kitchen with a broom.

Director Tom DePeter's skillful cast consisted of Thea Brandfon as Lenny, Florencia Lozano as Meg, Julia Ditelberg as Babe, Stephen Heywood as Doc Porter, Dan Smith as Barnett Loyd, Kyra Borre as Chick, and was assistant directed by Debbie Frieden.

Although the play had sad undertones, the witty dialogue and improvisational cake fight at the end kept it a lively comedy as well as a serious drama.

IN THE LOWER GYM

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

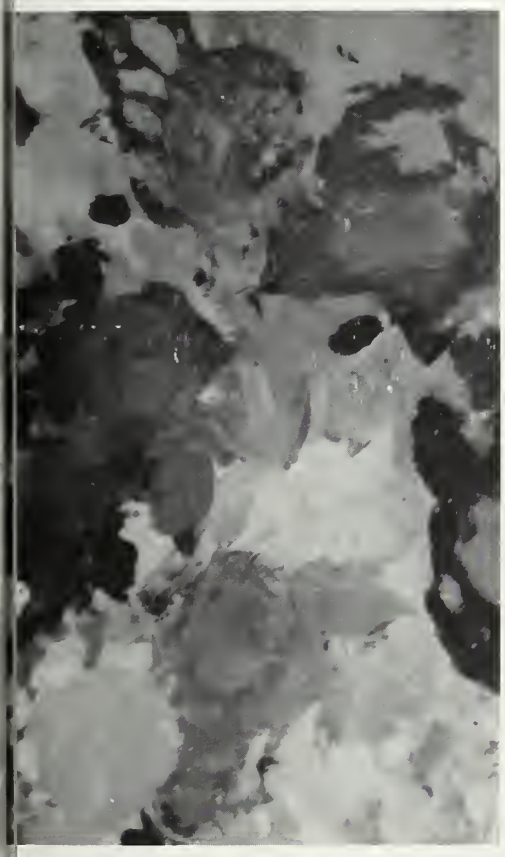

Art History, a senior honors course, leads one from the pyramids of Egypt and ancient art forms up to art of the present time. In this class, taught by art department head Daveda Movitz, students view and discuss important examples of painting, sculpture and architecture, and study stylistic changes throughout the various historical periods.

The course starts with Primitive and Prehistoric art periods, working up through Egyptian, Greek, and Romanesque art, the Renaissance, and continuing up to impressionism and art of the 20th century.

The course consists mainly of slide lectures where students compare various works of art, and deals primarily with early European and later American paintings and drawings as well as architecture.

Studio is another advanced couse, offered to seniors who are deeply interested in persuing a career in the arts. Studio art covers difficult problems in drawing, painting, printmaking and sculpture. Students not only put together a portfolio of work, but arrange and display one and two person shows around the school as well as numerous shows at the Ed Center. Those in Studio Art also run and participate in the bi-annual Art Scholarship Sale, during which art from the art department is sold on Main Street to raise scholarship money.

HARVESTFEST

Once a year the cafeteria is transformed. No, I don't mean for dances. No, not when it is clean (believe it or not, hard-working cafeteria-cleaners clean it daily.) No. I'm talking about the Harvestfest, that magical time of year when here at Newton North we gather in celebration and thanksgiving for our fine harvest of apples and whole grains. Although we sell no cider, I've seen root beer, and although we sell no doughnuts, I've seen pretzels. And eggrolls. And balloons.

And strange disc-like objects bearing the proud coat of arms: Newton North. Frisbees, I think.

Harvestfest provides the various tribes here at Newton North with a chance to sell their goods and to make the money they'll need for future harvests.

THANKSGIVING GAME

STUDENT, FACULTY A

Every Thursday morning in a room behind the bookstacks in the back of the library a group of students, faculty and administrators gather to debate issues of importance at Newton North. In the 1960's, when students across the country were demanding to be heard, Newton High School formed a board of students and a separate board of teachers to make school policy. Two separate boards did not work, though. So when Newton High School was split into Newton North and Newton South, North consolidated its government into one "SFA". Two student representatives were elected from each class, with alternates for the junior and senior classes. Teachers and administrators are selected in less heated races. Together, all the representatives meet to discuss, debate and decide on new school policies.

SFA stands for Student-Faculty Administration, which is what it is. Sometimes called SFAPTA because the PTA—which allows parents to become involved with North policy—is closely linked with the SFA. January 14, 1987 was the last day of the first semester. For the following two days, students came to school and attended lectures on overcoming prejudice. The purpose of this event, an intersession between the two semesters, was to raise awareness of an issue important to the school community.

The SFA has also debated the eight block schedule, and has changed the class ranking system from exact numbers to 5% bands.

While such a self-governing board is not so rare, one with the diversity of North's SFA is far less common.

ADMINISTRATION BOARD

The Skin Of Our Teeth

"The Skin of Our Teeth" directed by seniors Thea Brandfon and Jocelyn Leary was a fascinating play. It had a deep, vague message to mankind hidden in its seemingly simple characters, as Thornton Wilder's other plays also have. An often asked question was "What is it really about?" and it was asked by members of the cast as urgently as by members of the audience.

Technically, "The Skin of Our Teeth" was very simple. Divided into three acts, the play portrays a typical suburban family dealing with various disasters over the past 100,000 years.

In the first act, the Antrobus family (mother and father played by Deborah Frieden and Aaron O'Donnell, daughter and son played by Julia Ditelberg and Peter Edmonston, and the ubiquitous maid played by Jennifer Michel) manages to survive the Ice Age. The family even shelters various other characters, who would otherwise freeze to death, but only at the expense of their pet mammoth and dinosaur (portrayed by Julie Perlman and Merritt Schnipper) who are kicked out into the cold to become extinct.

The second act takes place right before a great flood in which the Antrobuses must gather two of each kind of animal into a boat. Sound familiar?

The last act takes place after what appears to have been World War II. Although the family has been through much hardship, they still maintain hope.

The Antrobuses are Adam and Eve; the Antrobuses are us. In spite of our vulnerability and sometimes competitive and jealous spirits, we still continue to have hope.

HOME ECONOMICS

The Home Economics Department, headed by Kathleen Henighan, is far from just baking brownies and sewing dish cloths. The offerings in this department are just as varied as in any other department, Henighan said. "These are the practical skills of life," she said. "We have courses in clothing, fashion, child development and family, nursery, interior design, foods and nutrition."

One of the most popular areas among teachers is the Tiger's Loft, the student run restaurant for faculty. This year the Tiger's Loft moved from a third floor room in Barry House to the Riley-Bacon big room. The Big room on the fourth floor used to be a math, English, study and walk through room between classes. Since the Toger Loft expanded, it was able to become more commercialized, with a larger eating area for the faculty.

At the NNHS library students can find not only books but an occasional kleenex, band aid or safety pin. The librarian staff plays second mother to over 2500 students in this "home away from home" according to Belle Gilbert.

As well as providing the academic help expected of a library, the librarians provide everyday essentials for any needy student. In addition to helping students with research the librarian staff has to wake sleeping students at the end of a block or chase stray dogs out of the library.

Librarians are also the recipients of many questions. Susan Huntoon comments, "In a thirty minute period I have been asked three times if we have a pencil sharpener." That, however, is an easy question. When a student asks for the red book that he used last week the librarians must ponder for several minutes before understanding exactly what the student wants.

In addition to books, the library houses special collections, student art work, and magazines.

The Newton North Technical Vocational Department, a "school within a school," was the "first public vocational school in Massachusetts, if not the country," according to Patrick Nicolas, the department head. Students who have a vocational major spend 12½ hours per week of their junior and senior years fullfilling their 1000 hour certificate requirement. In addition they must also meet the 100 credit requirement of Newton North students which leaves them with little or no free time. Their reward after graduation is placement in a job that pays around $10 an hour. Nicolas says that the North vocational system is "unique in its comprehensive approach to education."

What is truly special to the department is its involvement in the community. Carpentry majors build garden houses for Newton residents. Auto body majors fix the cars of Newton's senior citizens. Graphic arts students print the bulletins of organizations, including those of our PTA. Metal Technology students are commisioned by the mayor to cast the keys to the city for visiting dignitaries.

In addition, vocational students have many in class assignments such as wiring a model house in electronics class or building their dream homes in architecture class. The department attracts many guest speakers, and students make trips to see professional workers first-hand.

Newtonian 1987 of Newton North High School was printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing Division, 401 Science Park Road, State College, Pennsylvania 16801. The Jostens in plant consultant was Nikki Vescovi. The Jostens area representative was John Neister.

The cover was embossed and silkscreened to register on smoke material 491. Black and orange ink was applied to the lid and backbone. The book was rounded and backed with black headbands.

The endsheets were Stainless Steel #289 material.

80 lb Matte #195 stock paper was used with black ink.

All candid photography was taken by Newtonian staff members. Senior Portraits were taken by Purdy Vantine Studios, 100 Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, MA.

Of the 272 pages, 16 were printed in the four color process. The division pages were printed in second color-orange T-165. The art for the cover and division pages was produced by Ruth Schmidt and Adina Zarchan.

All headlines were set in Century Schoolbook and Benguiat. The body copy was set in 10 point Century Schoolbook. Captions were set in 8 point.

The distribution date for the 700 yearbooks was May 19, 1987.

Special thanks to Helen Smith, G.F.
